

Once you've booked

Taking part in a web conference is easy, just book online and you will receive:

- a confirmation e-mail
- an e-mail with your login details
- a link to the web conference.

You can access the web conference:

- online from home
- online from school
- using a PC or Mac with the latest version of Flash installed.

During the web conference, you will be able to hear the presenter through the speakers in your computer, or through headphones. No web conference experience is required.

A-level English Literature B: Feedback on AS Web conferences

In our new web conferences, Alan Kent and Andy Haley will give clear guidance about how to improve students' performance and the teaching strategies that really make a difference in the classroom.

Our web conferences are online interactive sessions where you can

- key in questions for presenters
- participate in typed 'chat' sessions
- take part in polling activities.

These web conferences are subject and component-specific and complement the CPD events on A-level and AS English Specification B.

The presenter will focus on:

- key knowledge and skills that candidates demonstrated well/less well in the summer 2011 examinations
- appraisal of student responses at different levels
- bridging the gap: how to improve student performance
- tips on good examination practice and technique.
