GIS: Using Geographical Information Systems in GCSE Geography

Web conferences

Robert Lang shows how to use online Geographical Information Systems (GIS) and visualisations in the teaching of key topics in GCSE Geography.

Our web conferences are online interactive sessions where you can

- key in questions for presenters
- participate in typed 'chat' sessions
- take part in polling activities and marking exercises.

This web conference is relevant for all teachers of GCSE Geography irrespective of specification or examination board.

You can share the web conference with colleagues via a projector or whiteboard at no extra cost.

The trainer will focus on:

- the GIS available free on the web
- how to use GIS to enhance your teaching of GCSE Geography
- how to approach key topics using GIS
- how to improve your students' questioning and research skills
- teaching strategies to enhance students' engagement.
